

PRESENTS

In 1996, Andreas Stamnes entered the Norwegian blues scene through the legendary blues pub Muddys Pub in Spydeberg. Despite his young age of only 16, Andreas quickly made a name for himself as both a talented guitarplayer and singer.

During the winter of 1999 he was invited to tour all over Florida with the famous blues master David C. York, better known as Rock Bottom. Being an American with a thick southern accent, Rock found it hard to pronounce Andreas' name and came up with the nickname Little Andrew. The rest, as they say, is history.

Andreas returned to Norway seething with inspiration and energy, and formed a group of his own: Little Andrew & The Blue Masters. They went on to win the Union Blues Cup in 2000 and toured all over Norway throughout the millenium. Some highlights included Notodden Blues Festival, Åmål Blues Festival, Drøbak Blues Festival, Oslo Jazz Festival and many others.

After some years with different musical solo-projects, Andreas formed a new band in 2005. Ronny Aagren was recruited as the new guitar player in 2009. Bassplayer Pål M. Dahlø and drummer Kåre A. Amundsen still keep the rock steady groove in Little Andrew, a band totally dedicated to the true tradition of blues, soul and rock n'roll.

In summer 2007, Little Andrew released the album "Rock Back To Bottom". The entire production was done in ten days at Juke Joint Studios, Notodden. The reviews of "Rock Back To Bottom" have been fantastic. The sound of the band is more aggressive and more down-to-earth rock n' roll, but still of course, the blues is present. Playing, not from the head, but from the gut, Andreas and the band have developed a unique rhapsody of hard rocking blues, with a bit of to-the-point vocal phrasing and charisma. Experiencing one of Little Andrews concerts is highly recommended and everybody is hereby invited!

Rock n' Roll hits rock bottom, and there is no reason to stay home!
